Absentee ballots available from area clerks

Area residents can apply now for an absentee ballot for the upcoming Nov. 8 general election. Anyone opting to vote by mail should submit an application to the local municipal clerk's office as soon as possible to avoid postal delays, advised Secretary of State Jocelyn Benson.

"Every successful election we have held in Michigan over the last three years, voters have made it clear they want options for how and when to cast their ballot by choosing to do so absentee in record numbers," Benson said.

"No matter what secure method they choose - whether voting by mail, local drop box or at their clerk's office - Michiganders can be confident their vote will be counted and their voice will be heard."

All voters registered in Michigan are eligible to vote absentee. They can apply online at Michigan.gov/Vote or print an application form from the site and mail, email or hand deliver it to their local clerk. Voters can find their clerk's contact information at Michigan.gov/Vote.

Voters with disabilities may apply online for an accessible electronic absent voter ballot at Michigan.gov/Vote or Michigan.gov/AccessibleBallot. The accessible ballot can be completed electronically, printed and returned to their clerk, Benson said in a prepared statement.

Clerks have already begun mailing out absent voter ballots. The completed ballots are already being accepted at local clerk's offices.

A ballot-tracking tool on the Michigan.gov/Vote site allows voters to check when their clerk received their absentee ballot request, when they mailed out the ballot and when they received the ballot back from the voter.

For more information on absentee voting, or to register to vote, go to Michigan.gov/Vote.

Recent recruit Northville Township welcomes new police therapy dog

The name of the newest 'officer' at the Northville Township Police Department is expected to be announced this week.

The force is expanding with the addition of 16-week-old male Goldendoodle puppy, as yet unnamed, who will undergo training to join the department as a police support dog. Police officers sought community input through social media to help find a new name for the recruit. Suggestions were being accepted until last Friday, but no decision had been announced at press time.

The new member of the department is among support dogs joining police departments across the country. Research has proven support dogs are effective in providing comfort and aid for people during times of crisis, particularly violent or traumatic events. The dogs also reduce anxiety and increase communication between witnesses and investigators, whether they are adults or children, according to national studies.

Northville Community Service Ofc. Andrew Domzalski researched therapy and support dogs for about a year after he witnessed firsthand how such a dog can change the atmosphere in a room. He felt that Northville Township residents would benefit from having a support dog and, after talking with other law enforcement agencies, learned the temperament of a Goldendoodle, a Golden Retriever and Poodle mix, would be a good fit for the township. Domzalski will be the Goldendoodle's handler and the puppy will accompany him to work and head home with him after hours.

Police officials agreed the dogs are a welcome presence at community events and schools as they foster dialog and communication between officers and residents.

The City of Wayne Police Department and residents are mourning the loss of their popular and beloved therapy dog, Zeke, who died this week of cancer. Zeke was a popular and valuable asset to the community, officials said, and will not be the last therapy dog in the Wayne department. "Zeke has already inspired therapy dog programs at multiple other police departments. We miss him terribly," noted a posting from the Wayne police.

Domzalski agreed that the role of a therapy dog has become important in community police departments.

"After speaking with various experts, other police departments and then meeting the Goldendoodle's parents, we knew we found a special buddy to help our great community," he said. Domzalski picked up his new partner on Tuesday.

"He will be a visible and highly popular member of our department and we couldn't be more excited to include him in our community policing programming," said Police Chief Scott Hilden.

The Goldendoodle begins support dog training in November. In the meantime, Domzalski is assisting the puppy with basic obedience commands.

"Northville Township Police Department is lucky to have him. Now we need to our residents to name him quickly. I can't wait to hear their ideas, Domzalski said."

The Goldendoodle's chosen name will be announced this week.

Repairs under way at Plymouth city parking deck

One of the most popular parking spots in the City of Plymouth is undergoing a much-needed facelift this month.

According to city officials, work on the Central Parking Deck in downtown Plymouth was expected to begin this week with initial survey work and equipment staging. Construction, officials said, will follow the preparatory work and was expected to begin late this week. Exact schedules were dependent on the weather, officials said.

Repairs will be made to areas of the deck drainage system, the pedestrian bridge to Main Street and the steel stairwell on the east side of the structure. Repairs will continue through early November, officials from the Downtown Development Authority said.

The repair work will radically limit access from the second level of the parking deck to either the pedestrian bridge or the stairs. Visitors using the upper level of the parking deck will be required to use the western stairwell near the medical center building. The medical center, however, is required to close the elevators after business hours so individuals with disabilities are cautioned not to use the upper level of the parking deck between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. Monday through Saturday and all day on Sunday while the pedestrian bridge is closed for repairs.

Officials said plans include making additional handicap parking spaces available on the lower level during the construction project. They added that signage regarding the temporary handicap spaces will be posted inside the parking structure.

The Fleet Street alley near the pedestrian bridge and stairwell may be closed intermittently during the project. Officials said only minimal impact on parking is expected during the construction project, but motorists may find the alley blocked at times.

Closure details and times will be posted and DDA officials suggested accessing the Downtown Plymouth Michigan entries on Facebook or visiting www.downtownplymouth.org for updates. More information is available at dda@plymouthmi.gov.

Plymouth library adopts new ‘Fine Free’ policy

The Plymouth District Library has entered a new chapter since first opening to serve the public in 1923. Book lovers will no longer pay a fine for the late return of items borrowed from the facility located on Main Street in downtown Plymouth.

Members of the library board of trustees unanimously approved making the library “Fine Free” effective Oct. 1. Now, library patrons will no longer be charged fees for late return of Plymouth Library books, movies and other materials. Existing late fees on borrower accounts will also be cleared, in an effort to make the library more accessible to the entire community explained Library Director Shauna Anderson. Patrons will, however, still be responsible for replacement fees for items lost or damaged.

Going fine-free is a change that is being made by public libraries across the country and across Metro Detroit, Anderson said, and has become increasingly appealing to libraries because late fees present a barrier to access that disproportionately affects low-income households and often stands between eager minds and reading materials.

“Libraries are intrinsically about equitable access to knowledge,” said Anderson. “We are so pleased that the library board was supportive of this proposed change so we can welcome back the entire community and not leave anyone out.”

In another move toward unrestricted access, the library is also introducing free computer print-outs of up to 10 pages per day, and this summer introduced new low vision activity kits. Available quarterly, these kits help introduce a fun activity in an accessible way, including special accommodations or tips for how to make the experience low-vision-friendly. Funding assistance for the kits was provided by the Library Access Friends which provided the kits planned for fall and winter. The theme for the fall kit is backyard birding; inside is everything needed to create a backyard birdfeeder, including detailed instructions and information on birding with low vision. The kits are now available and those interested persons can obtain one while supplies last at the Main Level Reader's Advisory Desk or at the Plymouth Friendship Station Senior Center. The December library newsletter will list pickup dates for the winter kit, which will focus on baking with low vision.

The library also now offers two new hands-on resources: Lerner Maker Lab and Creativebug, introduced this month for use by library cardholders. These two tools provide a wealth of opportunity for self-paced growth and exploration. Creativity and learning are set to take off to new heights, library officials said.

Lerner Maker Lab provides more than 500 age-appropriate science, technology, engineering, art and math (S.T.E.A.M.) projects with complete instructions and supply lists to get young (or old) explorers started. Projects include arts and crafts, physics and biology experiments, building projects, and cooking. Lerner Maker Lab invites kids to “craft, build, experiment, eat and celebrate” hands-on learning.

Creativebug has thousands of award-winning art and craft video classes taught by recognized design experts and artists. These classes can be enjoyed anytime, anywhere patrons have web access, library officials explained. The classes never expire, so crafters can start and stop projects at their own pace. Creativebug also offers a gallery where makers can share their creations with the crafting community, as well as hundreds of 30-day prompts to encourage creators development of a daily practice.

“We are excited to hear how our patrons are exploring with these new tools,” said Mary Kelly, electronic services librarian. “Lerner Maker Lab and Creativebug are treasure troves;

it's just incredible how much opportunity can be packed into one click of a mouse.”

The addition of these new tools is one of many ways the Plymouth District Library is acting on its strategic goal of engaging patrons with services that extend beyond books, Kelly added. To access the new resources, visit plymouthlibrary.org. More information about these changes can be found at plymouthlibrary.org.

The library is located at 223 S Main St. Plymouth. For more information, call (734) 453-0750.

A warm welcome

Members of the Sumpter Township Fire Department will be marking Fire Prevention Week with an open house at the fire station from noon until 3 p.m. Oct. 15. Visitors can tour the station, meet and greet fire department personnel and enjoy refreshments to mark the 100th anniversary of Fire Prevention Week, the longest running public health observance on record. The theme of the week-long observance across the country, Fire Won't Wait. Plan Your Escape, will be marked from Oct. 9 through 15 with fire station open house events throughout the area. The Sumpter Township Fire Station is located at 20550 Sumpter Road in Belleville.

NORTHVILLE

City, township present beautification awards

A bit of tradition returned to Northville last month during the 33rd Annual Northville Community Beautification Award Luncheon.

The award presentation took place as part of the Sept. 27 meeting of the Northville Rotary Club before an audience of about 50, officials said. The awards had been postponed for the past two years due to the health restrictions imposed by COVID-19.

"We're always getting better," said Diane Pittaway, chair of the Northville Beautification Commission. She noted that the help and support of many make it possible for commission members to work on maintaining and improving the beauty and vitality of the Northville community.

Lynne Mosteller, chair of the Northville Township Beautification Commission, provided an update on the group's activities, noting, "We're small but mighty," she said. The group is actively replanting 8,000 feet of the 2-foot living plant wall at Bennett Arboretum Pathway, which in recent years has been overcome by invasive species. Volunteers are being sought to help with that effort, she added. The township commission hosted a successful seedling giveaway on Arbor Day, where vehicles drove up, handed in their order, and picked up their seedlings. The group also used donated fund to create a seasonal garden in front of township hall with a seating area.

Turnbull joined Pittaway and Carol Pankow, commission secretary, to present the certificates including two special city awards. Corriveau Law won a Pride of Northville award for the law office at 324 E. Main. The second Pride of Northville award was presented to Angela Carson for her photography studio from the "exquisitely maintained historic home" at 117 N. Wing St. She is moving to a smaller studio on Center Street just north of Dunlap.

Top winners in the township were Deadwood Bar & Grill for Best in Township; Aisin World Corp. of America for Corporate Pride Award and Meadowbrook Country Club received the Lifetime Award.

The top winners for both the city and township received a photo of their business in a frameless stand.

Planning for essential services complex begins

Northville Township officials are taking the advice of professionals in their plans for a future essential services complex for the community.

The new complex will be located in Legacy Park and will include a second fire station, a new Public Safety Headquarters, new headquarters for the Public Works Department and provide storage for Parks and Recreation Department equipment.

Officials stressed that the new building would be constructed without any new tax burden on resident or businesses in the township.

The new additions at Legacy Park will, according to studies by outside consultants, improve service delivery to residents. Township officials authorized independent municipal government experts to determine the feasibility of the future plans.

The studies, officials said, concluded that the construction of the new public services complex to accommodate current needs was more cost effective than remodeling or renovating current buildings. Experts determined that the plan for new centralized offices would provide long-term benefits to the community.

The multi-year project is in the early stages of design and planning with an anticipated ground breaking in late summer/early fall of 2023, officials said. In addition, the property at Legacy Park will accommodate an additional elevated water tower within the township system. This translates to significant savings on future water costs, officials said. The planned 500,000 gallon tank will decrease peak water demands in the township, which will result in significant cost savings through the Great Lakes Water Authority rate methodology.

The tank will be completed in 2024. In 2022, members of the township board of trustees approved the construction of the new water tower at a total cost of $8,126,303. Funding for the project will be from budget fund reserves. Officials said the second tower has been in the planning stage for many years.

New sergeant is named

Daniel MacArthur has been promoted to the rank of sergeant with the Northville Township Police Department. MacArthur has worked in the public safety field since 1999. During his career with the Northville Township department, he has been involved in multiple assignments including serving as a field training officer; traffic crash reconstructionist; special weapons and tactics/breacher team leader/rappel master; firearms instructor and time with the police motorcycle unit. MacArthur is an honor guard member and has also worked as an undercover narcotics detective and Western Wayne Community Response Team detective. He received the Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police Medal of Valor and a Police Officers Association of Michigan Distinguished Service Award.

Deputy police chief retires from township

Deputy Police Chief Craig Wilsher is leaving the Canton Township Police Department after a 24-year career with the agency.

Wilsher started his career in Canton in 1998, following several years of law enforcement service with the Wayne County Sheriff's Office and the Detroit Police Department. He was promoted to the rank of sergeant in 2008, lieutenant in 2013, and became deputy chief in 2017. Wilsher earned a bachelor's degree from Wayne State University, and Master's Degrees from both Madonna University and Eastern Michigan University. He is also a graduate of the Eastern Michigan University Police Staff & Command School, and a graduate of the prestigious FBI National Academy Session 265.

Early in his career with the Canton department, Wilsher served as a road patrol officer, simultaneously taking on several special assignments including that of investigator in the detective bureau. Following his promotion to sergeant, he advanced through the ranks of lieutenant and deputy chief in about eight years. During that time, he served as a shift commander in the patrol division and was also selected for special assignments as the detective bureau supervisor and the special services lieutenant. For the past eight years, he has been designated as the department accreditation manager, tasked with fulfilling and maintaining the highest standards in policing under the international Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies (CALEA). In his current role as deputy chief, Wilsher leads the department patrol, investigative and support services divisions comprising more than 100 full-time sworn and non-sworn personnel. He also assists the director of police services with the development and implementation of the department budget, policies, procedures, special projects and internal affairs.

Throughout his career, Wilsher has been proactive in developing personnel and programs that embrace growth within the department, officials said. He has been integral in the creation and advancement of many progressive policing initiatives, including the departmental body-worn camera system, employee well-being programs, the embedded social worker program and the Coalition for Inclusive Communities.

“Deputy Chief Wilsher's career is highlighted by selfless leadership. He has made sacrifices for our organization and profession, knowing how fortunate we are to serve as police officers for the Canton community. In recognition of his professionalism, integrity, courage and devotion to our service, his career shall serve as a model for those who follow him. We thank him for his service, and wish him well on his next journey,” said Chad Baugh, director of police services.

ROMULUS - WAYNE

Into the future

The recent Vision Romulus-Our Community, Our Future think tank workshop drew a large crowd of participants at the Romulus Senior Center to learn about the future plans for the city and offer suggestions. The think-tank process helped to define a broad vision, values, goals and directions. It was conducted as two highly participatory 3-hour workshops that used scenario-planning to produce plausible futures for Romulus looking out to 2030. The scenario-based think-tank is among the efforts of city officials to gain better understanding of community priorities and goals that contribute to the creation of effective strategies and actions for program and resource allocation. The next step in the process will be a series of Focus Group sessions taking place on Nov. 9-10. The community survey will remain available until Oct. 14 and officials are hoping for more input from the community. Access and complete the survey and share it with family, friends and neighbors at <https://www.research.net/r/VisionRomulus>.

Witches wanted Goodfellows planning ‘spooky’ event

As the Halloween holiday approaches, members of the Romulus Goodfellows are thinking about Christmas. This year the club is organizing the first Witches Night Out in the community as an effort to help fund the annual No Child Without A Christmas campaign. Witches Night Out is mid-week event that has exploded in popularity across the country during the past few years. The event has a huge following in several states where it has become a destination event drawing people from surrounding areas to attend. Attendees attend the celebration dressed as witches and warlocks and enjoy an evening of Halloween-themed entertainment. In Romulus, the event is set for 6-9 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 27 at the Romulus VFW Post 78, 39270 West Huron River Dr. The evening will include contests for the best witch, hat and broom; 50-50 raffles along with food and non-alcoholic beverages. Witch attire is highly recommended. The cost for the event is $30 per witch and the event is limited to those 21 years of age or older; organizers said. No Child Without a Christmas has been a project of Goodfellows' organizations and their supporters for nearly a hundred years. Through their efforts, they have given the gift of a joyous Christmas to thousands of families with children, many of whom would not have had anything on their table or under the tree without the Goodfellows organizations. Romulus Goodfellows, Inc. is a 501(c)3 non-profit organization and all contributions made are tax-deductible. For tickets or information, contact the Goodfellows at (734) 322-7680 or romulus-goodfellows@gmail.com.
